I spoke to the volunteers who were working there and explained Jean's situation and that her mum's grave was E23. I could not believe they said it was accessible. We donned hi-vis jackets and were taken to the grave. Can you imagine how Jean felt being able to see and touch her mother's grave for the first time ever, at age 78. The bonus was her grandparents were also interred with her mother.

Jean at Farsley Rehoboth

This week we visited the site expecting to only be able to look at the gate! Imagine our surprise to see all the work that had taken place and was still underway. I spoke to the volunteers who were working there and explained Jean's situation and that her mum's grave was E23. I could not believe they said it was accessible. We donned hi-vis jackets and were taken to the grave. Can you imagine how Jean felt being able to see and touch her mother's grave for the first time ever, at age 78. The bonus was her grandparents were also interred with her mother.

My name is Mike Turner and I live on the Isle of Wight with my wife Ann. I have been doing Family History research on my wife Ann's side. She has two half sisters from her father's first marriage. He had two daughters Jean and Margaret. Unfortunately they lost their mum when they were 5 and 7 Jean and Margaret were never taken to their mother's grave although they knew where it was. Then of course the Rehoboth Burial Ground was sold and became a jungle.

A family's story

What is the Farsley Rehoboth?

The Farsley Rehoboth Baptist Burial Ground was a place of internment from 1785 to 2000 and reflected the growth of Farsley, in particular its textile industry with many of the industry's prominent residents buried there.

In total within the two acre site on Coal Hill Lane, (Bagley) Farsley there are circa 4,000 local people interred in the Rehoboth. All with their own histories and contribution to the growth and history of Farsley, Rodley and Stanningley.

Work to restore the Rehoboth started the day we cut the gate's rusty chains and ventured beyond its ivy covered walls for the first time in almost two decades.

Our charity was established in March 2019 to purchase, reclaim and maintain this historic ground to make accessible as a community asset.

Thanks to the many volunteers we are succeeding in making this historic site a public open space.
